HUARAZ: HUASCARÁN GLACIER (6.768mt/22.205ft)

1st day | Huaraz / Musho / Huascarán Camp Base L D

Transfer to Musho village (3.100mt/10.170ft). From here, hike until Huascarán Camp base (4.700mt/15.420ft). Dinner and overnight.

2nd day | Huascarán Camp Base / Camp I B L D

After breakfast, ascend the Huascarán's South peak, the highest snow-capped peak of the tropics, by its normal route. The approach starts from the slopes of the western glacier edge of Rajupampa. Rajupampa is the ice tongue of the western glacier, which originates in "La Garganta" (snow saddle between the North and South summits), place to set up the camp (5.400mt/17.715ft). Dinner and overnight.

3rd day | Camp I / Camp II B L D

Ascend the western glacier diagonally toward the south side of La Garganta (6.000mt/19.685ft) to roomy ice terraces. Here, the camp will be installed. Dinner and overnight.

4th day | Camp II / Summit / Camp II B L D

Climb the northwest slopes to the South peak of Huascarán, then to the summit. The spectacular view of the tropic's highest peaks and the Cordillera Blanca scenery is an exhilarating experience. Afterwards, descend for overnight at La Garganta.

5th day | Camp II / Camp Base B L D

Descend to Base Camp. Afternoon is at leisure.

6th day | Base Camp / Musho / Huaraz B L

After breakfast, descend to Musho for the land transfer to Huaraz, lunch included.
